

I have learned that Oak Creek Mayor Steve Scaffidi is resigning to become a radio talk show host at WTMJ-AM. Scaffidi, whose tenure has coincided with a boom in development centered on the growth of Drexel Avenue, will host an afternoon program. But he's not crazy. His show will end before mine. Republican State Assemblyman John Jagler, a former WTMJ personality, has had an on-air audition but is apparently being passed over. Scaffidi calls himself a republican but his politics are moderate. WTMJ has dropped most of its conservative talk programming over the last several months.
